5 STEPS TO MANAGING SALES TAX

The world of sales tax can be extremely confusing, but getting it right is crucial for success. As your business evolves and changes, your sales tax obligations may also change or expand. And when that happens, there are typically five steps you need to take in order to ensure you're compliant at every stage of the sales tax cycle. To help, let's review the basics of the five steps for managing sales tax that all businesses should take.

Step 1

Know where your business must collect and remit sales tax.

Step 2

Register to collect and remit sales tax.

Step 3

Calculate the correct sales tax amount.

Step 4

Track and manage exempt sales.

Step 5

Remit sales taxes to the tax authorities.

STEP 1: KNOW WHERE YOUR BUSINESS MUST COLLECT AND REMIT SALES TAX

OVERVIEW

You may not need to collect and remit sales tax everywhere, so determining where your business is required to collect and remit is the first step to sales tax compliance. The connection that establishes a business obligation to collect and remit tax is a concept known as nexus. Many business activities can create a nexus obligation with a tax jurisdiction, including having physical locations, remote employees, affiliate relationships, or economic activity in that tax jurisdiction.

WHAT TO DO

You first need to understand the business activities that can create a nexus obligation, then review your business activities to determine where you may have a requirement. Also, be sure to stay informed of changes in legislation that may affect local and state tax jurisdictions as nexus laws can change frequently. Avalara has many resources to help you understand the concept of nexus and stay up to date with changes in nexus laws.

STEP 2: REGISTER TO COLLECT AND REMIT SALES TAX

OVERVIEW

After you determine where you have nexus, and therefore where you need to collect and remit sales tax, you must register and obtain licenses in the appropriate tax jurisdictions. Unfortunately, the process, forms, and requirements aren't the same for all state or local tax authorities. In most jurisdictions you must secure the required licenses and register prior to legally collecting and remitting sales tax within the jurisdiction, so be sure to take care of this step before moving to Step 3.

If you realize in Step 1 that you previously established nexus but haven't registered to begin collecting tax, you may need to take additional steps to come into full compliance with the tax jurisdiction, such as backfiling unpaid taxes or participating in a voluntary disclosure agreement. More information on those options can be found here.

WHAT TO DO

Understand where you need to register and what business licenses, forms, and registrations need to be completed before you start collecting and remitting. All states and jurisdictions are not created equal when it comes to getting set up, so it's critical that you're aware of the individual specifications.

STEP 3: CALCULATE THE CORRECT SALES TAX AMOUNT

OVERVIEW

Once you're registered in the tax jurisdictions where you have a nexus obligation, you're ready to start calculating and collecting sales tax. There are more than 12,000 tax jurisdictions in the U.S., and each jurisdiction has different tax rates and product taxability rules, so it can be difficult to know what tax rate to charge. Although the rules can be complex, it's crucial to get sales tax right to avoid under-collecting for the tax authorities or over-collecting from your customers.

WHAT TO DO

Ensure you understand the variables that make up a tax rate, such as tax jurisdiction rules and product taxability for what you're selling. Have a plan in place to quickly and accurately apply the tax rates on your transactions.

STEP 4: TRACK AND MANAGE EXEMPT SALES

OVERVIEW

Businesses can be exempt from paying sales tax based on what they sell, and/or where they sell their products. For example, many states don't charge sales tax for nonprofit or government sales. In addition, products or items intended for resale are typically exempt from sales tax. Regardless of the reason for an exemption, the seller must collect and manage an exemption certificate for each tax-exempt purchaser in order to validate and confirm the reason sales tax wasn't collected. Failure to produce up-to-date documentation during an audit may leave businesses open to penalties and fines.

WHAT TO DO

If your business sells products or services that are exempt from sales tax, make sure you have a process in place to collect, track, and validate exemption certificates from your buyers. Neglecting to collect tax coupled with missing or expired exemption certificates is one of the top reasons businesses are assessed penalties during an audit. Ensure your process doesn't leave you open to this risk or create headaches caused by incorrectly charging sales tax when a sale is exempt.

STEP 5: REMIT SALES TAXES TO THE TAX AUTHORITY

OVERVIEW

Now that you've collected the appropriate sales tax amounts, it's time to remit those funds to the tax authorities. Each tax authority has unique regulations around sales tax remittance, including when sales tax returns are due, how they should be remitted (either via paper returns or electronic returns), and how frequently returns must be remitted to the taxing jurisdiction.

WHAT TO DO

Ensure you understand the filing requirements for each jurisdiction where you collect tax and have a plan or solution in place to file those returns when they're due. Determining your sales tax liability, what tax forms are required, and how to remit the tax can be incredibly time-consuming, so make sure you have resources dedicated for this every filing period.
